PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Surprise! I guess you thought you'd be hearing from our President, Steve Masterson. However, he has given me this opportunity to send this message to you this month.

We had GREAT participation from Chapter 29 members both with articles and pictures. This is what makes our newsletter YOUR newsletter and helps us stay up to date with all of our Chapter members and friends.

A lot of you are already aware of our camping "dilemma" and we have provided an account of the sale of our Class C later in this issue. We are still awaiting receipt of our Class A from Camping World where we had a slight encounter with a telephone pole the day we bought it - and the telephone pole WON. Never EVER trust the weather man in the South when they assure you there is no chance of snow! HA! only in your dreams! However, Camping World in Colfax is taking care of us and slowly but surely fixing everything so we can finally begin enjoying our rig. Steve and I had quite an experience, but then, we've come to realize nothing is "normal" during retirement. Whoever told us retirement could become boring obviously isn't retired

As we enter Spring with many of us venturing out, we are reminded that no matter how much fun we're having, we should always be aware of our surroundings and the weather. I can't remember a Spring being quite this violent in a large portion of the country. With storms, tornadoes, torrential rains and oppressive heat, we have kept you all in our thoughts and continue to wish you safe travels. Remember, keep your rigs in good operating condition, check those tires, keep hydrated.....and all those other things your mother constantly reminded you of.

Several Reminders - we have an informal social gathering in Palmetto Cove, Cleveland, SC, August 16-23. No rules, no hosts, no co-hosts, no planned schedule - just lot of fun and impromptu events. This was a chance to stay in touch with each other between rallies. Then we look forward to our 2015 Fall Rally October 1-4 with early arrivals September 27-30 at Raleigh Oaks RV Resort, Four Oaks, NC. Following a break during our colder months we will have our 2016 Spring Rally at River Vista RV Resort in Dillard, GA. Our Spring Rally is still developing and we want to remind you that we do not yet have co-hosts for this rally. This is your chance to create a rally and activities for your chapter. We encourage you to step forward and volunteer as co-host. It may be a learning experience for those new to co-hosting but, as we experienced with past rallies and SKP Acre, it never ceases to amaze me how our folks jumped in and helped out with everything from setup, suggestions, and cleanup. You will ultimately build a closer relationship with each member by working on a common goal. What a GREAT group of folks! And finally, a reminder that our 2016 SKP ACRE is being held at River Plantation RV Resort in Sevierville, TN April 14-19. Steve Masterson will again oversee activities as President. During our 2015 SKP ACRE we were asked to volunteer for various positions to serve with Steve. If you are interested in volunteering I'm sure Steve would LOVE to put your name on his list. We look forward to seeing all of you again. Details for each event are located at the end of the newsletter.

We are blessed to have such a wonderful membership in Chapter 29 and hope you continue to enjoy your camping adventures this year - as always. Travel safely and we will see you down the road.

Help Wanted!

You will see on page 23 we have included information regarding our 2016 Spring Rally which will be held at River Vista RV Resort, Dillard GA. We have not yet had anyone step forward to volunteer to be Co-Rally Masters. We are looking for two members to share this opportunity. If you've never planned one before, fear not! I'm sure that any of the past Co-Rally Masters would be more than happy to help answer any of your questions and give you guidance if needed.

If you are interested in volunteering, please contact either of the following.

May 1, 2015 - Carol & I hiked up the north side of Stone Mountain today.....didn't think we'd make it, but the old fogies did it! I didn't feel so bad when I saw all the young people huffing & puffing coming up the trail. It is about a mile of steady climb, most of which is on granite. As you can see, I flew up the mountain!

Tennessee-Georgia-North Carolina: April/May 2015

After attending the Chapter 29 and ACRE rallies in Sevierville, we headed south to Chattanooga, TN. When we made reservations at Raccoon Mountain RV Park, we were told they only had one site left because of the “Corn Bread Festival” being held in Pittsburg, TN, that week. Although there were full hookups, our site was on the side of a hill and was sparsely covered with gravel. As we had a lot of rain while there, our site was somewhat of a mud hole. We thoroughly enjoyed the area and visited Lookout Mountain, downtown Chattanooga, with its many good restaurants, The Hunter Museum of American Art, the Chattanooga Choo-Choo Hotel, The Mud Pie General Store, the pretty riverfront along the Tennessee River, etc. Oh, and we did go to the International Corn Bread Festival. Pittsburg, TN, is about 25 miles from Chattanooga just off I-24. The main street was blocked off for several blocks and the streets were filled with craft and food vendors (including several selling samples of different types of corn bread) as well as entertainers. Pittsburg is also the home of the Lodge Iron works, so we had to visit their company store.....didn't realize all the different type of cooking stuff they make.

We left Chattanooga and headed south to Stone Mountain, GA, and camped at the Stone Mountain RV Park.

We had a beautiful site facing the lake. This park is a little pricy, but is a first class facility. We were planning to tour downtown Atlanta while there, but decided not to fight the traffic in the city. At Stone Mountain Park, we visited the museums and an old reconstructed community inside the park, took the tram ride up the face of the mountain, and the next day even climbed up the northern face of the mountain, albeit with several rest stops on the way. One day we drove into Decatur to see the Dekalb Farmers' Market. It is the largest farmers' market we have ever seen, the size of two football fields. There were aisles & aisles of produce, wines, meats, fish and shellfish, rice, flour, beans, etc., etc. from all over the world. They had every imaginable type of spice, pastas, sauces, oils, vinegars, wines, teas, etc. I counted six types of snapper, as well as meat cuts, fruits and vegetables I have never seen before.

Tennessee-Georgia-North Carolina: April/May 2015

If you ever get down to Atlanta, you'll have to check it out. Bring lots of cash because they only take cash or debit card. On our last day there, we played golf at the Lakemont course in the park. It was a beautiful course, the first nine bordering the lake. The first hole, the signature hole, was a par five with the men having to tee off across a part of the lake, 165 yards to the fairway. From there, you looked directly down the fairway across the lake to the face of Stone Mountain...a beautiful hole.

Next, we drove north to the River Vista RV Resort in Dillard, GA, where we will be holding our spring 2016 Chapter 29 Rally. This is a first class resort and the management is very nice and responsive. While in Dillard, we drove up to Highlands, NC. We walked the pretty little town, visiting the many nice shops, and had a wonderful crab cake Caesar salad (no breading in the crab cake). On the way up to Highlands, we checked out a beautiful development around a golf course in Sky Valley. We also checked out a couple of the area waterfalls....There are numerous beautiful waterfalls in the northern mountains of Georgia. Another day we drove 40 miles southwest to Helen, GA, a quaint old German settlement. We checked out their shops and had lunch at the Old Heidelberg Inn. We shared a brat sampler platter with hot pickled red cabbage and German potato salad. Of course we each had to have a half liter of good German beer to wash it all down. On our last night went to the Dillard Inn for their Friday night seafood buffet. It was pricey ($29pp), but excellent. By the way, did we tell you we like to eat? ☺

Our next stop was Hendersonville, NC. We camped at the Jaymar Travel Park. We have stayed here before and it is very nice. Surprisingly, we ran into former Chapter 29 members, Ken & Jean Peterson, who are staying there for the season. On Mother's Day, I took Carol to the NC State Theatre in Flat Rock where we saw a Broadway cast perform a Patsy Cline musical....excellent! After the show, we drove into downtown Hendersonville for dinner.

Our last major stop was Tom Johnson's Rally Park for a NC State WIT rally. On one "free" day, we drove west to the little town of Black Mountain, another quaint little gem in NC. There are many shops and eateries to enjoy. On the way home from Marion we stayed overnight at Raleigh Oaks RV Park in Fair Oaks, NC. As it is the site for our fall 2015 chapter rally, we wanted to check it out. The owner is very accommodating and the park is very clean, with a nice rally room. The Martins and the Martins, Co-Rally Masters, plan to meet there sometime this summer to check out the area for activities and restaurants.

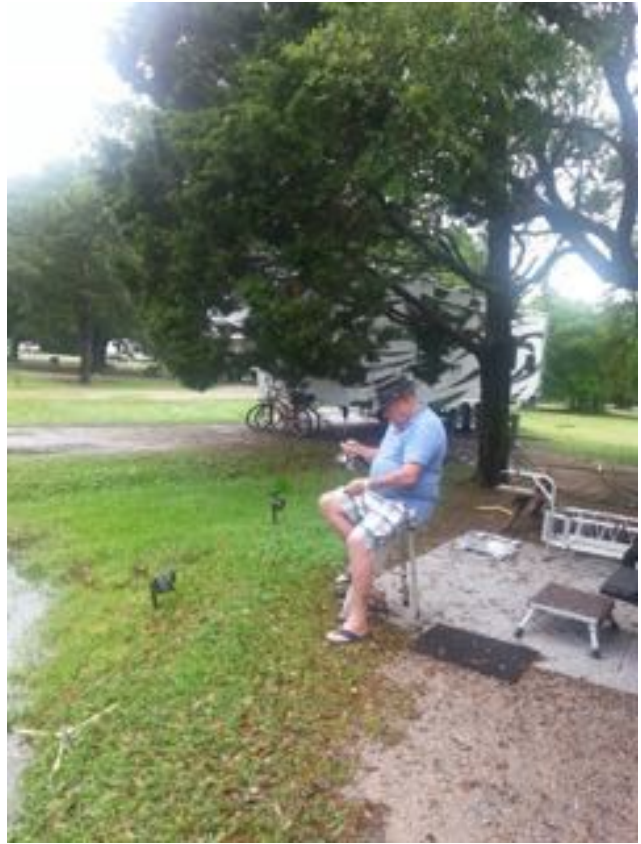

The thing we both liked about this trip was that it was not a long trip (approx. 1,300 miles), we didn't drive a long distance between stops, and we stayed at each place long enough to enjoy the area and have some catch-up time.

(Excerpts from Jon & Mary's BC trip)

Exploring BC in early Spring - Why wait until June to see British Columbia. To avoid the tourist crowds, mosquitoes, and black flies, we decided to see BC in early May. Even though many Provincial Parks and RV campgrounds were closed, the early Spring scenery and overall hospitality were worth it.

We traveled from 4/11 - 5/24 covering 9,400 miles. Below is a map showing where we went in British Columbia plus a few photos.

We crossed into Canada on 4/22/15 in Eureka, MT, meandering slowly through BC, traveling 100 to 200 miles per day. Our original plans were to hit the major tourist cities, however, these plans quickly changed as we talked to locals who suggested other scenic routes. For example, locals in Creston, BC suggested that we drive north, along the shore of Kootenay Lake and take a free ferry across to continue our plan trip to Osoyoos. We liked the drive and ferry so much we decided to continue north via a logging road (where we saw a black bear) to a second free ferry. From the map you can see we continued this style of wandering and exploring.

Where did we stay? We mostly tried to find low cost/free forest type spots for a few days and then a "regular" campground for a night. Even then we choose unpowered sites to save money if they offered it. The extra cost of a "regular" campground provided a hot shower and dump station. Several towns also offer free dump sites. Only a few places did we stay more than one night with our average cost about $20 Canadian/night.

A high point in our adventure was a 22-hour ferry trip from Port Hardy to Prince Rupert. There were only about 200 people on board. We had an outside cabin for sleeping and Mary got an afternoon tea party because it was Mother's Day. The one challenge was backing up my rig the whole length of the ship as it only had a rear entry.

After getting my Ford F-350 serviced in Dawson Creek, BC, we began our long, rapid trip home via northern Alberta and Saskatchewan - returning to the U.S. via Williston, ND - the heart of the ND oil boom.

Even though the trip was long and tiring, it was the type I enjoy. I am already planning a similar 2016 trip.

"Chapter 29 Members Gather in Rock Hill, SC"

We are currently at Ebenezer County Park in Rock Hill, SC with camping friends who are, coincidentally also SKP members. We arrived Sunday morning June 14 and left Thursday morning June 18. Sunday evening Craig & Marie Rickenbach and Norm & Carol Lowrance joined Kaye & Erwin Heins and Linda & I for dinner at Newks. Had a great time. Monday Marie chauffeured Kay & Erwin and Linda & I to IKEA and The Container store where we enjoyed Swedish Meatballs for lunch at IKEA. (Craig had to fly out to Wisconsin Monday for work). Today Erwin & I and our ladies are going to the Charlotte Aviation museum which currently houses the plane from "Miracle on the Hudson". We're enjoying LOTS of stuff inside because it's supposed to be 101 degrees today. Tonight (6/16) the group, minus Craig, will be joining us for all you can eat crab legs at a nice seafood restaurant near Ebenezer. We miss y'all.

New Rattitude Jamboree in Sweetwater, TN

Following Chapter 29 rally and SKP ACRE in Sevierville, TN in April 2015 Linda and I attended New Rattitude Jamboree in Sweetwater, TN. We had a great weekend and have never seen so many Rat Terriers in one place, all running loose in a fenced area. There were all sizes, blind, hairless, three legged, black, white, brown, grey, tricolor, long tails, short tails and all were so lovable. If a dog jumped in your lap you had to look to see what dog needed a cuddle. We are definitely attending again next year.

We camped in Marion and visited the Mountain Gateway Museum at Old Fort, shopped and browsed Black Mountain after having our usual German Lunch, then checked out the Jellystone Park campground southeast of Marion.

A few weeks later we camped at Swannanoa KOA. We visited the crafts museum on the Blue Ridge Parkway, had some Yummy BBQ at Okie Dokies Smokehouse, visited Asheville's Art Museum, visited the Water Lilly swamp which was in exquisite bloom and watch the peddle car move along the street by the craft fair.

The Red Hibiscus in front of our townhouse has been Jacks summer work. We're leaving Thursday, July 2 for Hartwell Lake along the I-85 in South Carolina to celebrate Independence Day weekend. See y'all down the road.

Tech Tips

Managing Your Passwords

Many articles have been written about changing your passwords to foil thieves. According to these articles, many people use simple passwords because they are afraid they will forget or because they can't think of any. But passwords are easy to remember when you use ones that are special to you. Don't use your children or grandchildren's names or current pets, especially if you mention them frequently on social media or keep photos on the desk or your computer.

But how about favorite books, or movies, or music artists? For example, say your favorite books are the Harry Potter series. There are a wealth of passwords acquired there: "Harrypotter7&" "Harry+Hermione" "Iamamuggles" "Mugglesareus". Simple, right?

What if you love Springsteen or country songs? Pick one song and shorten it, write it backwards, add the year you first heard it. So many simple variations come that you could just change it frequently and still remember it.

If you really like a particular password, say, the names of your two grandchildren, write both the names backward and add today's month and year. When you change it, you just keep changing the month and year. Put the month and year in front of the name or in the middle. "YdnaM?2005" "Nathan8/15boy"

Do you like gardening? What big plant did you put in this year? How is your hydrangea or Queen Elizabeth rose doing? "BeautifulQErose2015" "EndlessSummer??"

I have used pet names with capitals and birth years in various combinations. Even if someone knew the names of all my cats over my lifetime, it is unlikely that they would be able to guess all the combinations available. I keep it simple to remember by using only a few variations and access the files frequently. For less used files, I keep a list of the passwords in a secure but easily accessible location.

Additionally, do not use the same password for all of your financial, legal, and medical accounts. You could use a one for your bank accounts, another for loan accounts, another for credit cards, another for your medical records. Then if someone does find out one of your passwords, they are limited in the files they can access. Use a special one to password-protect your computer so that when you open your computer, you must log in every time and that includes every time it goes to sleep and you must waken it. I have two computers and I use separate, very different passwords for each.

This is not a failsafe protection for hackers. They can still get at your information in outside sources, as has been shown in the news with stores and even the federal government. But using good passwords can help eliminate hacking into your own personal files and every little bit helps.

Terri Wirtz

..and Now a Message From Your Newsletter Editor

I would like to thank all of you who contributed to making this a GREAT issue! I'm very appreciative of all of the articles and pictures and thankful that everyone seems to be having such a good camping year.

The news from my end is that YES we have sold our Class C RV. We are just waiting for Camping World to put the finishing touches on our Class A. We're really anxious to get it home and start putting our personal touches on the interior. Hopefully we'll be ready to roll for our August gathering at Palmetto Cove.

How to Sell (or maybe not) your RV

.....and now, for the rest of the story..... We started advertising our Class C immediately after our trip to Sevierville, TN, in April. After cleaning it up and taking some GREAT pictures (at least in our opinion), we posted it on Craigslist, RVT.com and Face Book local "For Sale" areas. Our ritual every morning was to get up and drive it 8 miles north on Hwy #8 at the Interstate 85 junction for better visibility (returning it home each evening). Patience has never been one of our virtues, however, we were getting a lot of inquiries and knew it was only a matter of time before the right person came along. And it happened this past Monday, June 29. We received a call at 7 a.m. from someone whose first sentence was "I have $20,000 in cash. How much more do I need to get to buy your RV?" (no name, no introduction, nothing!). She and her husband had seen it on the side of Hwy #8 and saw the pictures on Craigslist. After quickly negotiating our price she said she hoped we wouldn't sell it in the next three days and hung up. We quickly dismissed this as yet another weird call and never expected to hear from her again. At 2:30 p.m. she called back, said "I'm Dixie and I have all of the money in cash"... and shoved the phone at her husband (still no husband's name or introductions except for her first name). We spent the next hour looking at each other in bewilderment - wondering if this was real. We met them at 3:00 pm at the RV, unlocked the door, let them in and they immediately came out and were going to exchange the money right then and there - on the side of the road. We, instead, guided them to our bank two blocks away to exchange the money there. The wife, her mother (who had advanced alzheimer's) remained in the car outside of the bank with the air conditioning running. The husband only went out to tell his wife he needed her signature - and she promptly left her mother and dogs in the running car to come into the bank. I could only imagine her mother reaching over the front seat and putting the car in Drive and ending up in the bank lobby - Thank goodness that didn't happen. The husband put a wad of money like I've only seen in movies on the teller's window - all in 100's, 20's and 10's. We asked them several times if they didn't want to test drive it or go through the systems and the answer was always "No - we don't need to drive it now." So the money was exchanged, the title signed and notarized, and then we were off to the DMV. Steve was STILL driving the RV because the husband STILL did not want to drive it yet. At the DMV, we turned in our plates, titled it in the new owner's name and I cancelled the insurance on it while in the parking lot. So, the entire transaction from start to finish only took eight hours and they STILL never drove it until they left the DMV parking lot. The lady at the bank was amazed and said it was the strangest transaction she had seen in a while. The last we saw of our RV was heading out of the DMV parking lot, husband driving with one dog and wife, her mother and the other dog following in their car. May they have a long and happy life and many happy camping days!

Your Invitation to RVillage!

We have posted our fall rally info on rvillage.com. and would encourage everyone to join rvillage. It is an awesome resource for scheduling get togethers.

Here is an example of what you will see via email once you join:

You have been invited to join the Get-Together "2015 SKP Chapter 29 Fall Rally". Please click the following link to view it:

There are currently 33 rigs in the Escapees Chapter 29 Carolina Rovers section, and room for plenty more. This would let all of us know where fellow chapter members, as well as RVers with similar interests, are situated, in relation to our current location. There is no charge to sign up on this site, and the main requirement is to remember to change your location as you move about - very easy to do. The website is RVillage.com with FAQ's at <https://rvillage.zendesk.com/hc/en-us> that cover all the various aspects of the web site.

The following is an announcement made by RVillage on June 27.

Dianne Wood

Greetings RVillagers,

Summer has officially arrived and the camping season is in full-swing! We have loved seeing the Home Feed full of all the stories and photos from your recent adventures. Thank you for sharing a slice of your RVing life with us. Keep em coming!

The last several months have been pretty amazing around RVillage. Our community continues to grow, we are now over 25,000 members! That growth is important- it means more great folks we can connect with along our travels. Perhaps even more exciting than the uptick in new members is how active our village has become. Every day new friendships are forming, and it's clear that we have created something pretty amazing together!

And speaking of new friendships, as many important RV Clubs find out about RVillage, they have been telling their members about us so they can use the "connecting" tools to stay in touch with each other on AND off the road. We are very grateful for their involvement!

This month two notable RV Clubs have joined us and we want to give all of those folks a special Welcome:

- FMCA (Family Motor Coach Association) WELCOME! (If you are an FMCA member OR a motor coach owner or wannabe, please click the FMCA badge to connect with your fellow FMCA members or to learn more about their club)

- WIT Club (Winnebago Itasca Travelers) WELCOME! (If you are a WIT Club member OR a Winnebago owner or wannabe, please click the WIT badge to connect with your fellow WIT members or to learn more about their club)

All of the chapters and special interest groups of these clubs have been added to RVillage, so if you are a member of one or more of them, don't forget to join them as well.

If you are a member of a club that you would like to have a presence on RVillage as well, don't be shy...please send us an email to support@rvillage.com and let us know. Your club's involvement is free, and we would love to share these tools with your members.

Have a friend or many friends you want to share RVillage with? Here is an easy TOOL to let them know! When you send them a message with this TOOL they will get a friend request from you when they join! INVITE A FRIEND!

We want to remind ALL Villagers to update your location often by clicking the icon in the upper left corner of the site.

If you are checked into a park, remember to update your location so you can be notified when others check into that park as well. Connecting is as easy as a click of a button!

Happy Travels,

RVillage

Development Update

Since our last newsletter, the Development Team went a little NUTS and dropped some major new features on the site...

1) BLOGS! Now you can show and tell the RVillage community all about your adventures on and off the road, and grow a following of your own. Don't be shy, blog about it! We all want to hear more about you and your travels, and RVillage blogs are a perfect place to share. Hint: Photos and videos will make your blog even better!

2) CHAT! Have you all noticed the little chat tab at the bottom right of the site? You can now chat realtime with any of your friends that are currently online. Go ahead and say hi! Please note this feature is currently only available on the desktop version, and you will only be able to chat with those that are on your friends list. (Go ahead... make some friends!)

3) EXPLORE MAP on the Home Page! We want to make connections as simple as possible and a huge part of RVillage is to be able to find people and things around you. So, we moved the Explore Map to the home page so you can immediately see RVillagers near you. Don't forget to change your location OFTEN to get the most accurate results! (Hint: When you search for parks, the "Green" flags are parks that have 3 or more Villagers checked in)

And of course we're always squashing bugs and keeping the engine humming. We hope you enjoy these new features!

Membership Rate Change

Last July when Escapees RV Club celebrated its 37th birthday and blew out the candles, a birthday wish was made. The wish was to make our services even more affordable. In order to make that wish come true, the decision was made to offer half-price dues and challenge every member to bring in one new member.

Many of you rose to the challenge and spread the word. While the new member base has been growing, the ultimate need for each member to bring in another fell short. As a result, half-price dues are not sustainable for another year. However, we do plan to fulfill our wish to keep annual dues as affordable as possible. We will continue to offer a deep discount. Starting on July 1, 2015 memberships and renewals will be $39.95. To put the icing on the cake, we are also waiving the $10.00 enrollment fee for new member sign-ups.

We will continue to keep membership dues as low as possible for as long as we are able, but we cannot do it without your help. Don't rely on your fellow members to get the word out. Take it upon yourself to bring in at least one new member before the year is up. This is a time to reach across the generations and help one of your children or grandchildren experience the community, education and support that Escapees and Xscapers have to offer.

Renew Now!

Want to secure another year of membership at the $29.95 rate? You still have time before July 1 to renew for one year only. Visit www.escapees.com or call 888-757-2582 to renew your membership today!
